Product Description

40cm Honey Uncapping Tools Uncapping Knife With Curved and Straight Side

Introduction:

Uncapping is a process that involves the removal of wax capping from the honey combs. An automatic uncapper is usually used in large commercial operations. This has a turn-around of up to 600 frames per hour which is ideally perfect for such a huge enterprise. However, small beekeeping operations are unable to invest in such expensive technology. The hand-held electric uncapper or the plain honey uncapping knife will suffice for small beekeeping operations.

No matter the technology you use, wax capping should be removed so as to facilitate honey harvesting from the combs. Uncapping makes it possible for the bees to reuse the same cells instead of building new ones. The energy that would have been used for building new combs will now be used for refilling the empty combs.
